

Competency Training announces new partnership with Singapore based K2 Velosi

Brisbane, 01 September 2015 – Competency Training today announced a new partnership with Singapore based training provider, K2 Velosi to begin localising Competency Training in Asia. This partnership will see K2 Velosi facilitate Competency Training’s site customised and industry specific training in K2 Velosi’s Singapore and Korean training locations.

With a proven track record in training within the Oil and Gas industry, K2 are well known for the delivery of training for rope access, working at height, dropped objects prevention and CompEx training, amongst other safety and skills training courses. K2’s delivery of bespoke training packages from years of combined field and training expertise aligns to Competency Training’s proficiency of delivering site customised and industry specific training. K2 delivers safety and skills training courses worldwide from offices in Singapore, Korea, Brazil and the USA.

The direct connection between Competency Training’s industry specific training and K2 Velosi’s local Asian presence allows clients in Singapore and Korea to enjoy the real world and confidence building education products that Competency Training has long been known for in Australia and New Zealand.

Competency Training Director, Steven Lonton said “this partnership has opened the door for Competency Training to bring our highly desired training to the Asian market. We are excited to partner with K2 who not only have an outstanding reputation in the oil and gas industry, but who share similar company values.”

K2 Velosi is accredited under the CompEx international scheme. Together with Competency Training’s IECEx Recognised Training Provider certification and Australian RTO accreditation, this partnership offers clients access to the most recognised international training standards.

To kick off the partnership, an Installation and Maintenance course is scheduled for 21 September at K2’s Singapore training facility. The 5 day course has been designed to align to IECEx and AS/NZS standards.
